Because every day to meet. soon fell in love. he should slowly fall in love with this girl statue. Pygmalion put all their enthusiasm and hope are on the works of sculpture. so moved Venus. the last to get the statue to life. Well. the Greek legend of how the king had it process is linked with psychology in 1968. American psychologist Rosenthal. who has conducted a study in primary school. experiment is carried out: one to six on their first grade students in the intelligence tests. and told teachers it was predict the future development of the child test. They then selected 20% of the students are not selected based on the results of intelligence tests. but randomly carried out. They told the students of the Teacher. the development potential of these students is very large. A few months later. when another of these students in grades six intelligence tests. we found that was said to be the development of potential students. their IQ had improved compared with the other students. and teachers of these students was that a strong thirst for knowledge. The researchers found that the situation with the expectations of Pygmalion brought about dramatic changes are very similar. so borrowed the ancient Greek legend. the change in P56 student teacher expectations lead to a phenomenon called Pygmalion effect. also known as Rosenthal effect or expectations effect.
